Vision and Values

The Christian faith is at the heart of our school community.
At Christ Church we all care, learn and work together for God and others.

‘For we are all God’s handiwork, created in Christ Jesus to do good works, which God prepared in advance for us to do’. Ephesians 2:10

Our Christian Values are Creation, Community, Endurance, Thankfulness, Reconciliation, Wisdom

The distinctive nature of our approach to education can be found in our explicit Christian values, our collective worship, our grounded Christian ethos, our carefully crafted curriculum and in our Religious Education.

We aim to provide ambitious learning opportunities, promoting achievement in every area and nurturing social, emotional and spiritual well-being.

We actively promote the children’s cultural capital (defined as the acquisition of skills and knowledge, which an individual can draw on to give them an advantage in life). We will introduce them to strong role models who will impart their knowledge and wisdom to help the children engender an appreciation of human creativity and achievement and to become responsible local and global citizens.

Character and resilience are the qualities we promote within our children, developing the inner resources that we call on to help us in life. We instil these qualities in our children to make sure that they are ready to make their way in the world as robust, confident and inquisitive individuals.

We know that confidence, knowledge and skills will help them to become compassionate and well balanced young people. We want them to take their place in society as active citizens, economically independent, exemplifying the British values of equality, mutual respect, democracy, individual liberty and rule of law.

We use our six Christian values, Creation, Wisdom, Thankfulness, Community Endurance and Reconciliation, to reinforce and enrich our teaching wherever applicable.

- Creation

For every house is built by someone, but God is the builder of everything. Hebrews 3:4

- Wisdom

For the LORD gives wisdom; from his mouth come knowledge and understanding. Proverbs 2:6

- Thankfulness

Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; his love endures forever.
1 Chronicles 16:34

- Community

My command is this: Love each other as I have loved you. John 15:12

- Endurance

Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up. Galatians 6:9

- Reconciliation

Bear with each other and forgive one another if any of you has a grievance against someone. Forgive as the Lord forgave you.
Colossians 3:13

Our vision is inclusive and seeks to promote the whole child thrive within our Christ Church family.

Each member of our Christ Church family; children, parents and staff are valued as God's creation. We believe in full inclusion and acceptance of all and that this allows every individual to flourish.

1 Introduction and purpose of policy

On rare occasions, school staff may need to use restrictive interventions to safeguard pupils or maintain discipline within the school environment. Keeping children safe in education recognises that there are circumstances where it is appropriate for staff to use reasonable force to achieve these aims and states that schools must not have a no contact policy as this can put staff and pupils at risk.

This guidance has been written to help schools develop policies around the use of restrictive interventions so that any interventions used are lawful and carried out in a safe and responsible manner. The aim of any policy is to ensure staff are confident about the context in which they have the power to use restrictive interventions and restraint in order to safeguard pupil welfare.

Camden's core statement

Restrictive interventions and reasonable force should only be used when they are necessary and proportionate, after de-escalation strategies have been attempted where appropriate and when there is a clear risk of serious harm to the pupil or others, or serious damage to property or to prevent disorder.

Decisions on when to use restrictive intervention is a matter of professional judgement, and any intervention or restraint should be proportionate and reasonable in the context of the perceived risk and in the pupil's best interests. This would normally be after de-escalation strategies have failed. Should such an intervention be required the school should record the details, including any injury, and contact the parent/carer on the same day to explain the circumstances involved.

This policy adopts the statutory terminology from Restrictive interventions, including reasonable force, in schools (DfE, 2026), including the definitions of 'restrictive intervention', 'reasonable force', 'significant incident', 'restraint' and 'seclusion'. Restrictive intervention refers to any action, physical or non-physical, that restricts a pupil's movement.

2 Legal framework

Section 93 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 gives schools the power to use reasonable force to:

- prevent a pupil from hurting themselves or others
- prevent a pupil from causing serious damage to property
- remove a disruptive pupil from a classroom

- prevent a pupil from causing disorder among pupils during school activities, including during off-site visits
- prevent a pupil from leaving a classroom where there is a risk to their safety or the safety of others.

Statutory guidance makes it clear that restrictive interventions and restraint cannot be used as a punishment.

Section 550ZB of the Education Act 1996 also gives schools the power to use reasonable force to carry out searches for prohibited items where the young person has not consented to the search. Prohibited items are:

- knives and weapons
- alcohol
- illegal drugs
- tobacco and cigarette papers
- fireworks
- pornographic images
- any article that has been or likely to be used to commit an offence, cause personal injury or damage property.

When conducting searches, schools/colleges should refer to the Schools Screening and searches guidance.

Schools can also refer to the following government guidance for further details:

- Use of reasonable force in schools

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/use-of-reasonable-force-in-schools>

- Searching, screening and confiscation in schools

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/searching-screening-and-confiscation>

This policy supersedes earlier guidance and aligns with the statutory and non-statutory guidance Restrictive interventions, including reasonable force, in schools (DfE, 2026).

3 Senior leadership responsibilities

Senior leaders in schools, including governors and head teachers, should ensure the following:

- There is a culture of respect and good relationships between staff and pupils so that the need for high-level intervention is reduced.
- All staff are aware of the school policy and their powers and responsibilities regarding the use of restrictive interventions and restraint and their part in implementing this policy.
- Staff are able to use de-escalation techniques strategies in the first instance unless the situation requires an immediate physical response.
- All staff receive appropriate training in behaviour management, including de-escalation techniques so that they are confident to deal with incidents and only use restrictive interventions where necessary.
- Schools may wish to consider whether certain staff members should receive specialist training on restrictive interventions and restraint techniques.
- The school will assess any risk posed to staff and take steps to reduce these risks. Staff do not place themselves at risk when using physical restraint and are able to access medical treatment and take time off if injured.
- The use of restrictive interventions and restraint is part of an overarching strategy of behaviour management within the school environment and that its use is closely aligned to the school's behaviour policies.
- Staff are aware of any agreed adjustments to the policy and procedures that are in place for individual pupils who are vulnerable due to learning and other disabilities, autism or mental health difficulties (see section 5).
- Staff are supported to use restrictive interventions and restraint where this is within acceptable parameters and in line with school policies.
- Support is offered to pupils and staff involved in incidents requiring restrictive interventions and restraint.
- There is a system in place to record and monitor incidents where restrictive interventions or restraint have been used.
- The policy on restrictive interventions and restraint is reviewed at least annually and more frequently where thought appropriate.

4 Restrictive interventions and use of reasonable force

School powers allow the use of reasonable force to control or restrain pupils where necessary and its lawful use will be a defence to any related criminal prosecution or where an allegation is made against teaching staff.

To ensure the welfare of pupils and to protect staff from any misplaced allegations, any physical contact between staff and pupils must be appropriate within the context of the teacher/pupil relationship, the pupils' age and the circumstances. There are many examples of appropriate positive physical contact that can be used to reassure, comfort, guide or calm a pupil.

Restrictive intervention can cover a wide variety of contact with pupils of varying degrees of intrusiveness ranging from positive handling, such as gentle guiding to physical restraint. The level of intervention and the degree of force required will be determined by the circumstances and the level of assessed risk to the pupil and others.

Generally, low-level physical contact/positive handling can be used to manage most behaviour, for example gentle contact to comfort, reassure or guide a pupil away from risk or block their movements.

For younger pupils, this positive handling can be used to control the child's movements in order to keep them from harm or danger. The level of contact and force that would be acceptable to achieve this would be like the actions that a reasonable parent would do to keep their own child safe.

In some situations, it may be necessary to use a restrictive intervention in order to hold back a pupil or control their movement and which involves restraint or the use of force. Where force is used, it must be reasonable – a proportionate response to the risk involved and used with a clear intent to prevent harm.

Reasonable force should involve "no more force than is needed" to achieve the desired outcome and should only be used for the purposes of restraining or controlling a pupil in order to safeguard pupils, stop damage to property or keep order in the classroom. What is reasonable force will be down to the professional judgement of the staff member, but any use of force must be justifiable and the paramount consideration is that any action is taken in the interests of the pupil.

Staff must never use any restraint or physical restrictive intervention that restricts a pupil's airway, breathing or circulation, including pressure on the neck, chest or abdomen. Prone or ground-based restraint must be avoided and, if it occurs unintentionally, released immediately

5 Vulnerable pupils

Some pupils may exhibit challenging behaviour in response to overstimulating environments, stressful situations or an inability to communicate distress in any other way. This can make them more vulnerable to experiencing restrictive intervention and restraint and it is likely the experience will be traumatising.

Schools should be mindful of pupils that may be vulnerable such as (but not limited to):

- children who have learning and other disabilities and autism
- children who are experiencing mental health difficulties
- children who have experienced trauma in their lives, for example, looked after children, refugee children and unaccompanied minors, children living with domestic abuse and children with child protection plans.

Under the Equalities Act 2010, it is essential that schools can demonstrate that reasonable adjustments have been made to ensure any policy on physical intervention and restraint does not disadvantage these pupils.

Government guidance Reducing the need for restraint and restrictive intervention also requires schools to take steps to reduce the use of physical intervention for vulnerable children and this will be a feature of any inspection carried out by the CQC and Ofsted <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/reducing-the-need-for-restraint-and-restrictive-intervention>

Special schools where pupils have a high level of needs requiring regular restrictive intervention to manage behaviour may wish to consider use of a bespoke policy that takes account of the specific needs of the pupils using this guidance.

Schools must demonstrate that the specific needs of these pupils have been considered and that the school will tailor their approach accordingly to avoid discrimination against these pupils.

School policies on behaviour management should uphold the rights of vulnerable pupils, ensure their safety and dignity, and work in partnership with parents to reduce the need for restrictive interventions and restraint.

Vulnerable pupils will be subject to the requirements set out in this policy, but schools will also need to meet the following extra requirements.

- Vulnerable pupils whose behaviour is likely to increase the risk of restrictive intervention and restraint should have a behaviour support plan in place from the outset and pupils and parents should be fully involved in agreeing this plan. However not all vulnerable pupils will require this.
- The plan should set out the strategies for managing challenging behaviour and should include a hierarchical response ranging from prevention, de-escalation and detailing how incidents will be dealt with.
- The plan should be based on an assessment of the pupil's particular needs and how these contribute to challenging behaviour, including any triggers for challenging behaviour and what steps can be taken to avoid these triggers and maintain a positive learning environment for the pupil.
- The plan should include any techniques for de-escalating situations and how best to manage challenging behaviour in order to avoid use of restrictive interventions and restraint.
- Staff must adapt verbal and non-verbal communication during incidents for pupils with communication needs or sensory profiles.
- Forms of restraint or restrictive intervention to be used should be identified and agreed in advance and the circumstances for its use set out clearly so that pupils and parents understand the circumstances in which it will be used.
- The plan should include which staff members will be responsible for its implementation and what specific training they will receive to support them in this role.
- Behaviour support plans should also cover any transitions that a pupil may experience between services or locations as movement to unfamiliar places may be a trigger for challenging behaviour.
- Schools using forms of restriction intervention involving seclusion or a withdrawal that potentially restricts a child's liberty should have written rules about how and when these measures will be used.
- Seclusion, as defined by the DfE (2026), may only be used as an emergency safety measure and must be recorded and reported in line with statutory requirements.
- Schools may discuss approaches with parents/carers but do not need their consent to use restrictive interventions or seclusion when it is necessary, safe and lawful.

6 Planning and prevention

6.1 Whole school

Schools should be alert to situations and circumstances that can lead to incidents that may require restrictive intervention and take active steps to avoid issues escalating.

The school should regularly review environmental factors within the school that may lead to incidents in the school or elsewhere and should consider:

- the general school environment and any potential hot-spots
- any difficulties that may arise at different times of the day, ie: breaks
- any issues around supervision of pupils
- specific environmental factors for vulnerable pupils
- specific risks related to gender, race, ethnicity, sexuality or disability
- specific risks related to gang activity
- specific risks off-site/school trips.

This should address:

- the nature of the risk and likely impact on pupils
- the likelihood of incidents
- actions and/or reasonable adjustments for vulnerable pupils
- actions to be taken to avoid incidents and reduce risk
- actions to be taken in the event of an incident in order to reduce risk to staff and pupils.

6.2 Individual pupils

All vulnerable pupils' who are at heightened risk of experiencing restrictive interventions and restraint should have an individual behaviour support plan (see section 5).

Seclusion refers to confining a pupil alone in a space from which they are prevented from leaving, physically or through perceived consequences. This requires continuous supervision and must always be recorded and reported.

Where a pupil requires restrictive intervention on more than one occasion, or where there is a known risk of restrictive intervention being required, the school should ensure an individual behaviour support plan and risk assessment are in place. This should consider their specific circumstances, any triggers to behaviours, and strategies or approaches that may reduce the number of incidents. The plan should be reviewed regularly.

Where it is known that restrictive interventions involving force or restraint may be required in order to manage an individual pupil's behaviour this should be planned for in partnership with parents and the pupil (where appropriate) and an intervention plan/risk assessment put in place.

The risk assessment should consider:

- the risks to the pupil and others from their behaviour
- the risks from use of restrictive interventions
- the risks from not intervening
- the form of restrictive intervention that would be the least restrictive.

The plan should:

- identify the triggers to the behaviour that may lead to the need to intervene or restrain
- relevant background information, such as experiences of home life or history of abuse
- detail any de-escalation techniques that should be used in the first instance to deal with incidents
- set out what forms of restrictive interventions and restraint may be used without injury to the pupil, staff member or anyone else present
- provide details of how incidents will be reviewed and who will be involved in the review.

Behaviour support plans must be reviewed with the pupil and parents after any significant incident involving restrictive intervention.

Planned intervention can be viewed as positive as it demonstrates a commitment to keeping children safe and enables them to take part in the planning process.

7 Dealing with incidents

7.1 Initial consideration

Before any action is taken staff should quickly weigh up the situation and decide if intervention is needed immediately to avert risk of harm. It is for the staff member to make a professional judgement on whether the situation requires the use of restrictive interventions and the degree of force needed.

The staff member must be clear on the justification of the action and the intended outcome of intervention, for example stopping a young child from leaving the classroom to stopping an older pupil from attacking another pupil, and how the intervention is in the best interests of those involved. This could be important in terms of providing a defence to any allegation of assault arising following the incident.

Staff should also consider the risks of not intervening, for example if no intervention is made and the pupil causes serious injury to another, the school could be considered negligent in the duty of care owed to that pupil.

7.2 De-escalation

De-escalation techniques if possible must be used in the first instance and staff should:

- make the pupil and others present aware that the staff member is taking control of the situation
- ask other pupils to leave in order to calm the situation
- send for assistance from another staff member (particularly if restraint is likely to be needed)
- remain calm and respectful and speak slowly and clearly to the pupil to give reassurance and instructions
- be aware of their tone of voice and body language
- where possible, use minimal force/positive handling to gently guide the pupil away from danger (but be aware of risk to self)
- be aware of their own emotions and avoid allowing the situation to spiral
- if the pupil is pacing, try to remain still and avoid mirroring their anxiety
- keep a respectful distance and avoid encroaching on the pupil's personal space
- give the young person options so that they have an opportunity to resolve the situation in a dignified manner
- be specific to a pupil's SEND.

De-escalation techniques can be used where there is an opportunity to do so but not in a situation where a pupil is already at risk of harm and action is needed. However, staff can continue to use many of the techniques listed above during restraint to calm and reassure the young person.

7.3 Use of reasonable force and restraint

All staff have a duty of care to pupils and have the power to use restrictive interventions and restraint where required. However, staff can send for help if it is thought that assistance will be needed.

Use of force must be reasonable, proportionate and necessary and restraint should only be used for as long as is needed.

- Ideally, staff should not have to deal with incidents requiring restraint alone for any period of time and it is recommended that other staff attend the incident as soon as possible to reduce risk.
- Where possible, before intervening, staff should warn the pupil clearly and calmly that physical force may be used to restrain them and they should be given an opportunity to comply with any instructions to avoid this.

- When using restraint, staff should remain calm and continue to talk to the pupil calmly throughout to reassure them and let them know what is happening and why.
- The restraint should:
 - only involve the minimum of force necessary to restrict movement
 - only be used temporarily until the risk has passed
 - should not restrict breathing or blood supply
 - should avoid bringing pupil to the ground
 - should not involve any contact that may be amount to a criminal offence such as assault.
- The child or young person should be released slowly and safely when it is felt they are sufficiently in control of their emotions.
- If the restrictive intervention appears to escalate rather than reduce the risk, staff should reassess the situation and modify or cease the intervention where safe to do so.

8 Following incidents

8.1 Recording and reporting incidents

The school must keep a written record of every significant incident involving use of force the same day, where practicable, and always as soon as possible thereafter, including all details required by statutory guidance. This must cover as a minimum:

- names of pupils and staff directly involved
- any relevant needs or circumstances of the pupil, including whether the pupil involved has an identified special educational need or disability and their SEN status code
- time, date, location and approximate duration of the intervention
- brief account of the incident, including what led up to the incident, identified or potential triggers if known, any preventative or de-escalation strategies used, and (where relevant) what type of reasonable force was applied, the degree of force, and details of any physical injuries sustained
- brief account of why the use of force was assessed as necessary in that instance
- any post-incident support, such as details of any medical treatment for injuries or other adverse impacts.

8.2 Notifying others

- The head teacher must be informed of all incidents immediately to decide on what further actions are required.
- The designated safeguarding lead should also be informed of incidents that may raise any safeguarding issues.
- The school must notify parents of any significant use of force, seclusion or restraint as soon as practicable and ideally the same day, in writing.
- Reports to parents/carers should include the following details as a minimum:
 - time, date, location and approximate duration of the interventions
 - brief account of why the intervention was assessed as necessary in that instance
 - brief account of what type of force was applied, and the degree of force
 - details of any physical injuries sustained, if applicable.
- For seclusion or non-physical restraint, reports should describe the nature of the restrictive intervention used and why it was assessed as necessary.
- Schools should also consider inviting parents/carers to have a follow-up discussion about the incident where this is appropriate to do so.
- Where reporting to a parent may cause serious harm to the pupil, the school should report to an alternative parent (or foster carer where the child is looked after) or, if there are none, the Local Authority.
- The governing body must be updated regularly on the use of restrictive intervention, seclusion, restraint and significant incidents to identify patterns and ensure compliance with statutory duties. They must review data to identify any disproportionate use of restrictive interventions affecting pupils with protected characteristics, SEND or other vulnerabilities.
- In settings where the use of restrictive interventions and restraint is a regular feature due to pupils' individual needs the setting should have in place a system for recording, analysing and reporting incidents. This can be particularly helpful during Ofsted inspections and where an allegation or complaint is made.

8.3 Support following incidents

It should be acknowledged that the use of restrictive interventions and restraint carry an inherent risk of injury to staff and pupils involved.

Use of restrictive interventions and restraint can be upsetting for pupils and staff. Schools should have procedures in place for dealing with the follow-up of incidents so that those involved have time and space to recover and reflect on what happened. Learning can then be used to review and improve policies.

It may be necessary to ensure staff and pupils receive any required medical attention and are able to talk to someone who was not involved in the incident about what happened and why.

For vulnerable pupils, staff and parents should discuss the incident and consider whether the behaviour support plan needs to be changed and what learning can be taken from the incident.

8.4 Monitoring and reviewing incidents

Schools should monitor and review the use of force, restrictive interventions and restraint as a means of learning from incidents to improve practice and inform risk assessments and ultimately, to avoid the need for restrictive interventions and restraint. Information on incidents can help inform any risk assessment both on a whole-school level and in terms of individual or groups of pupils. This is particularly important in the case of vulnerable pupils who may be more susceptible to experiencing restrictive interventions and restraint.

When reviewing incidents, the school should consider the following:

- Was the use of restrictive intervention necessary, appropriate and proportionate?
- What steps were taken to ensure that minimum reasonable force was used?
- Have the incidents needing restrictive intervention increased/decreased?
- Are vulnerable pupils over-represented in the numbers and if so, why? Is the school confident that vulnerable pupils are not being discriminated against by policy and procedures?
- Was the length of time restrictive intervention was used kept to a minimum?
- Could alternative methods other than restrictive intervention been used?
- What steps were taken to ensure that restrictive intervention used causes a minimum of pain or distress?
- What steps were taken following restrictive intervention for the pupil and the staff involved?
- Were there separate debriefing sessions for both pupil and members of staff who have been involved in the intervention? What were the antecedents, consequences and alternative courses of action?

9 Training for staff

Training from a relevant trainer increases staff confidence in dealing with incidents and reduces risks. Training must equip staff to apply restrictive interventions safely, assess proportionality under pressure, understand individual risk assessments, and comply with statutory recording and reporting duties.

When considering training, schools should be aware that any member of staff may need to intervene in emergency situations. Schools may consider training in the context of the needs of pupils and the number and seriousness of incidents that are likely to occur in the school.

- All staff should receive training on how to prevent the need for restrictive interventions, including how to de-escalate situations and awareness of positive handling techniques.
- Schools should identify the most appropriate members of staff for specialist training in restraint techniques.
- Schools should keep a record of the types of training staff have received and those staff who have received specialist training in restraint techniques.
- Some settings such as special educational needs or pupil referral units may have a higher level of incidents requiring a higher proportion of staff to receive specialist training on positive handling techniques. Where settings have a regular need to use restrictive interventions and restraint it is recommended that all staff should be trained.

10 Publicising the policy

It is recommended that the school policy on restrictive interventions and restraint is part of the behaviour management policy and that the Camden core statement shown on page 1 is widely available to staff, pupils and parents/carers so that they are aware of the policy.

The Camden core statement and any behaviour management policies should be available on the school website. It is important that pupils and parents are aware of the school's legal powers to use restrictive interventions and restraint and the circumstances in which it is likely to be used. It should also be acknowledged that reasonable adjustments will be made for more vulnerable pupils such as those with SEND.

Parents should be made aware that their consent is not required to use restrictive interventions and restraint. Parents should also be aware of how the school will inform them of any incidents requiring the use of restrictive interventions and restraint.

11 Complaints and allegations

The use of restrictive interventions can lead to accusations against staff by pupils and parents of improper conduct or assault, so it is essential that schools have in place clear policies and procedures around the use of restrictive interventions and restraint so that staff have a defence against such allegations.

Schools should publish the complaints policy and ensure pupils and parents know how to make a complaint following the use of restrictive interventions or restraint. When dealing with complaints and allegations it should be remembered that the onus is on the person making the complaint/allegation to set out how the member of staff did not act reasonably in the circumstances.

However, it must be demonstrated that the staff member followed agreed practice and procedure. It should be made clear to staff that force may only be used within the parameters set out in the school's policy and that any deviation from acceptable practice will leave the staff member vulnerable to complaints and allegations.

Where an incident of restrictive interventions or restraint leads to an allegation being made against a teacher, this will be dealt with under the CSCP "Guidance for schools on managing allegations against staff and volunteers" and the matter will be referred to the LADO.

Appendix 1: Practical Advice and Guidelines on the Use of Force (Camden guidance)

Examples of situations that fall within the first two categories listed in Section 93 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 include:

- a. A pupil attacks a member of staff, or another pupil;
- b. Pupils are fighting;
- c. A pupil is committing, or on the verge of committing, deliberate and serious damage to property;
- d. A pupil is causing, or at risk of causing, injury or damage by accident, by rough play, or by misuse of dangerous materials or objects;
- e. A pupil is running in a corridor or on a stairway in a way in which he or she might have or cause an accident likely to injure him or herself or others;
- f. A pupil absconds from a class or tries to leave school other than at an authorised time. The judgement on whether to use force in this situation would depend on an assessment of the degree of risk to the pupil if he or she is not kept in the classroom or school (age and understanding would be critical factors).

Examples of situations that fall into the third category are where a pupil – this is not to suggest that all these cases would lead to or require the use of force:

- g. Refuses to obey an order to leave a classroom;
- h. Is behaving in a way that is seriously disrupting a lesson;
- i. Blocks a door to prevent others from leaving;
- j. Is using a mobile phone to disrupt a lesson (an authorised member of staff could forcibly confiscate the phone by removing it from a hand or desk but could not lawfully search the pupil for the phone); and
- k. Resists attempts to search him or her for a weapon.

In all these cases use of force would only be reasonable (and therefore lawful) if it was clear that the behaviour was sufficiently dangerous or disruptive to warrant physical intervention of the degree applied and could not realistically be dealt with by any other strategies.

Key question: Does the risk of not intervening outweigh the risk of intervening?

There is no legal definition of reasonable force and that it is therefore not possible to set out when it is reasonable to use force, or the degree of force that may reasonably be used. This will always depend on the circumstances of the case and be a matter of personal and professional judgement.

The use of force can be regarded as reasonable only if the circumstances of the particular incident warrant it. The use of any degree of force is unlawful if the circumstances do not warrant the use of physical force. Therefore physical force could not be justified in order to prevent a pupil from committing a trivial misdemeanour, or in a situation that clearly could be resolved without force.

The degree of force employed must be in proportion to the circumstances of the incident and the seriousness of the behaviour or the consequences it is intended to prevent. Any force used should always be the minimum needed to achieve the desired result.¹⁷

Types of intervention which may be appropriate:

- Any holding tactic in which a young adult is held without injury until the young adult calms down.
- Physical contact with a young person designed to control the young person's movements which pose a danger (e.g.: holding by the arms against the side of the body). Standing by the side of the young person is likely to minimise the risk to adult and young person.
- The holding of a young person's arms or legs to prevent/restrict striking/kicking.
- The use of sufficient physical force - without causing injury - to remove a weapon/dangerous object from a young person's grasp (if foreseeable this requires specialised training).
- Physically preventing a young person from exposing themselves to possible danger by leaving the premises.

Where children have been identified as possibly requiring the use of physical interventions, it is strongly recommended that staff working with these children are trained in the use of appropriate techniques. However, all staff have a duty of care in this respect.

Pupils should not be placed on the floor unless staff have received specialist training. Where risk assessment has taken place it is imperative that techniques are outlined within the pupils' Positive Handling Plan. Following ground-holds, pupils should be monitored every fifteen minutes for at least three hours. All relevant authorities, including the parents/carers, must be informed as soon as possible following the incident.

The member of staff should advise the young person calmly and repeatedly that he/she could stop the restraint by applying self-control.

The young person should be released from restraint as soon as is safely possible. Release must always be carried out in a planned and controlled way.

As far as is possible staff should avoid any actions that could be viewed as sexual. If a member of staff feels that a necessary restraint action may be viewed by a young person as having a sexual content, the staff member should describe what he/she intends to do and why, giving the young person an opportunity to avoid it. If the action remains necessary, while carrying it out, the staff member should repeat why it is necessary, stressing that it is in the young person's power to remove the need for restraint.

If restraint is required for an extended period because the child cannot be released safely the senior member of staff on duty will monitor the situation closely with a view to safeguarding the young person and the staff concerned. Best practice during a long intervention would be to rotate the staff involved; this requires training.

As far as possible actions should be calculated to reduce the need for restraint or, when restraint is used, to reduce the length of time for which it is necessary.

Only a court may judge what is reasonable in terms of the amount of force used in Reasonable Force and obviously does so retrospectively.

The following actions are examples of what would be deemed as unreasonable:

- Striking a person
- Exerting excessive pressure on any part of a young person's body
- Causing actual injury to a young person
- Forcing a young person's arm up his/her back
- Squeezing a young person's windpipe
- Sitting on a young person
- Lifting a young person off the floor in order to intimidate
- Pulling a young person's hair

The following are also prohibited as forms of control

- Corporal Punishment

It is totally illegal to use corporal punishment in all state-maintained schools. Corporal punishment may be defined as any act or threat of an act, such as hitting, kicking, slapping, punching, poking, prodding, biting, throwing an object, rough handling etc, which causes or threatens harm.

- Restriction of liberty (e.g. locking someone up)
- Deprivation
- Requiring the wearing of distinctive or inappropriate clothing (clearly this does not include wearing of school uniform or school sports-wear)
- Fines
- Intimate physical searches

Appendix 2 - Managing Confrontation and Physical Intervention (Camden guidance)

Advice for staff

At all times try to manage your own emotions – maybe take a deep breath – and don't become involved in a 'conflict spiral'. Situations are rarely personal.

Name the inappropriate behaviour; express clearly the desired behaviour – calmly, confidently and assertively.

Use 'language of choice' – put the responsibility/ownership of behaviour with the child/pupil

Remaining Calm - the ability to try and remain calm and appear relaxed is less likely to provoke.

Calm Stance - Think of the values of stepping back from a situation, both physically and emotionally.

Pacing and Chasing - Angry people often pace around in tense situations. Try to remain still when attempting to help a student calm down.

Awareness of Space - Try to be aware of the space around you and avoid stepping in to another individual's personal/intimate space.

Intonation - When people are anxious or angry they tend to talk faster, higher and more loudly. In a crisis situation staff should deliberately speak slower, lower and more quietly. How we deliver a message is as important as what we say.

Help Script – Particularly useful when addressing an agitated student. Connect by using student's name; recognise the feelings – "I can see you are upset"; "I'm here to help"; Give direction but not promises.

Diffusing body language responses

- Social distance
- Sideways stance, step back
- Intermittent eye contact
- Relaxed body posture
- Palms open

Physical Interventions:

On extremely rare occasions it may be appropriate for staff to intervene physically with or between students. These include:

- Injury or risk of injury to another student
- Injury or risk of injury to a member of staff
- Serious damage to property

All staff owe a duty of care to students. To take no action, where the outcome is that a child injures him/herself, or another, including staff, could be seen as negligence.

Appendix 3 - Physical intervention procedures (Camden guidance)

As soon as a member of staff has decided to intervene physically in order to prevent injury occurring to any person, or serious damage to property, then she/he should:

a) Give clear instruction, warning the young person of the consequences of failure to comply. Note: this warning must not comprise any threat of unlawful assault.

b) If at all possible, summon a second adult – this can help to:

- Reduce the risk of injury (to staff or child)
- Act as a witness to the situation (for the protection of adult and child)
- Diffuse the situation – the second adult may not be the focus of anger and could indeed take over
- Remove other children from the situation

c) While intervening the member of staff must:

- Employ minimum physical force necessary for the minimum period needed to restrain the young person;
- Keep talking to the young person for example: ‘if you stop kicking I will release my hold’ (unless an individual protocol is in place);
- Avoid committing any act of punitive violence
- Keep his or her temper under control
- Ensure that there is a record of the incident

Any intervention should be a last resort and be ‘proportionate’, ‘reasonable’ and ‘appropriate’. Any intervention should be done with the aim to reduce not provoke.

Staff are strongly advised not to physically stop students from leaving their room or the school unless absolutely necessary – give choice and consequences.

Application of Force (DCSF guidance to schools 2007)

Staff should NOT act in a way that might reasonably be expected to cause injury. This includes:

- Slapping, punching, kicking or tripping a pupil
- Twisting or forcing limbs against joints
- Indecently touching, holding or pulling a pupil by the hair or ear
- Other than in circumstances that are exceptional, using reasonable force to hold a pupil face down on the ground

In the event of a serious incident e.g. a fight, staff should:

- Make their presence felt – “stop fighting, stop fighting”
- Send for assistance
- Spell out sanctions
- Remove the ‘fuel’ by clearing the ‘audience’ away
- Be a witness
- Intervene physically if confident and having assessed the degree of risk

But should not ignore or walk away.

Key question: Does the risk of not intervening outweigh the risk of intervening?

Appendix 4– Reasonable Force register

Christ Church School

Record of positive handling.

Name of adult making report..... Date.....

Name all adults and children involved in the use of reasonable force.

Describe what led to the use of positive handling.

Describe how the pupil(s) was/were restrained.

Any future actions that will be undertaken to limit the opportunity for the behaviour to be repeated.

Headteacher: Mrs Paula Walker

Thursday 4th October

Dear Mr and Mrs xx

I am writing to inform you it was necessary to restrain xxx today to calm him/her down and help them to deescalate and regulate their emotions. A decision was made that this was a necessary measure to ensure his/her safety and the safety of those around him. Please make an appointment with the office so we can discuss this incident further and work together on strategies for supporting your child.

Yours sincerely

Paula Walker
